

What will you bring back from your international trip, aside from memories and souvenirs?

We'd like to know!

We are conducting a research study to find out how often international travelers pick up highly antibiotic-resistant bacteria in the gut while they are abroad.

If you're interested in participating in this research study, let the front desk staff know when you are here for your pre-travel visit!